TUITION UPDATE

Did you know that we can screen for Dyslexia and Dyscalculia?

What is Dyslexia

Dyslexia is a specific learning disability that primarily affects reading and language processing. Individuals with dyslexia may have difficulty with phonological awareness, decoding words, and spelling. This can lead to challenges in reading fluency and comprehension, despite having average or above-average intelligence.

What is Dyscalculia?

Dyscalculia, is a learning disability that affects an individual's ability to understand and work with numbers. People with dyscalculia may struggle with basic arithmetic, number sense, and mathematical reasoning. This can manifest as difficulty in performing calculations, understanding mathematical concepts, or remembering mathematical facts. Like dyslexia, dyscalculia occurs in individuals with average or above-average intelligence and is not indicative of a lack of effort or motivation.

Both conditions are neurodevelopmental and can vary in severity. Early identification and tailored interventions can help individuals manage these challenges effectively.

Screening and a full report is £125

Maria can also diagnose and screen for Irlen Syndrome.

Irlen Syndrome, affects the way the brain interprets visual information. Individuals with Irlen Syndrome may experience difficulties with reading, such as words appearing to move or blur, as well as sensitivity to light and contrast. This can lead to discomfort, fatigue, and challenges in focusing on text, which can impact academic performance and daily activities.

It is important to note that Irlen Syndrome is distinct from dyslexia, although some individuals may experience both conditions.

Screening costs £75.

Discounts are available when more than one screening is carried out together.

Please get in contact if you have any further questions.
